

Choosing a personal alert system that's right for you.

System types

Personal alert systems can be either a base unit with a pendant, or a GPS system. Both types are available from our listed suppliers.

-  Base unit and pendant - You can use these systems as you move around your home, if you are within range of your base unit.
-  GPS systems - You can use GPS systems both around and away from your home as they do not need a base unit. A GPS device runs off battery power and requires regular charging, which means you can't wear it 24/7.

 All systems include falls detection

Other options to consider when choosing a system and supplier

- Pendant, wristband or watch?
Would you prefer to wear it around your neck or on your wrist?
- How heavy is it?
Consider if the weight of the device will be comfortable for you, especially if you will wear it around your neck. GPS-equipped devices are typically heavier than non-GPS.
- How often do you need to charge it? (GPS systems only)
- Will you need help setting up your device?

Choose from one of the suppliers over the page to obtain your new PAASA system. Only provide your codes to the supplier once you have made a selection.
